

Healthcare

McLaughlin & Stern has an active healthcare practice which specializes in the representation of physicians, physician groups and physician networks. The firm is experienced in all forms of corporate and commercial transactions involving providers, taking into account the impact of numerous government regulations affecting the day-to-day operations of the provider entity.

McLaughlin & Stern also is active as general counsel to several hospitals. As a result, the firm has a unique insight into and experience with the continually evolving relationship between the hospital facility and its attending physicians.