Ryan Ingraham, Esq. is a trial attorney who began his career as a law clerk at a longstanding Estate & Trusts practice in North Palm Beach, FL. After working as a clerk for 4 years, Mr. Ingraham decided to pursue law school by attending Mitchell Hamline School of Law in Minneapolis-St. Paul, MN. Mr. Ingraham graduated Magna Cum Laude in the top 20 of his class from Mitchell Hamline School of Law. Mr. Ingraham began working at medium sized insurance defense firm as a paralegal while finishing law school, and ultimately stayed with the firm after passing the Florida Bar exam and obtaining his license.

Mr. Ingraham experienced success in the insurance defense litigation practice area and decided his services were best suited serving the people. Mr. Ingraham has experience representing Insurance Companies in insurance coverage related disputes, property insurance claim disputes, and liability disputes. Mr. Ingraham's knowledge and experience makes him equipped to represent Plaintiffs in insurance disputes, injury cases, and medical malpractice. Today, Mr. Ingraham's practice area focuses on the representation of persons or their families who are injured or killed due to the negligence or medical malpractice of drug and alcohol rehabilitation centers in Florida.

When Ryan is not working for his clients, he spends his time giving back to his community. Mr. Ingraham is the Secretary of the Treasure Coast Opioid Task Force, an NGO whose mission is to reduce opioid use and overdose deaths through the combined efforts of multiple community stakeholders on the Treasure Coast. Ryan also contributes his time trying to promote the reach of Florida Association of Recovery Residences (FARR) in his local Treasure Coast community. Ryan spends his free time with his wife Shelby and son Charles and in his younger years was a competitive golfer - you can usually catch him on the golf course if he is not working.
